Personal Philosophies

Opinionated thoughts I've collected...

- We are in the era of Integrated Marketing where business, product tech & product strategy work together to reach business objectives and goals. Tech is responsible for the how, while the business/strategy delivers the what/why.
- Fail fast. Fail forward.
- Prioritize ruthlessly. Deliver fast. Learn fast. Tweak fast. Repeat.
- Ask questions. Learn as much as you can about the problem before any code is written. Filter any noise. Solve the problem.
- Empathize. Listen. Be mindful.
- Front stab.
- Websites will become more like Apps (PWA) once more APIs are implemented.
- Clear systems lead to results.
- Clearly communicate expectations and deliverables.
- Work should be fun.
- People are not resources.

Opportunities at Starbucks

Opinionated thoughts I'm sharing*...

- ▶ Integrated Marketing
- ▶ Ordering via the Web (time-based)
- ▶ Already lead in App space, I'd like to do the same with Web. All QSR's are losing to Pizza concepts. Align Web styles with App (Already happening with Accounts section)
- ▶ Dynamic content (day-part, based on user) & suggestive up-sell on web
- ▶ Shared component structure & styling (reusable code)
- ▶ Headless CMS shared across web properties (Buy, Build, Lease)
- ▶ Experiment with newer tech: GraphQL - Flexible, visual representation of API structure, single requests vs multiple calls and callbacks (Admittedly not new, but definitely not commonplace yet)
- ▶ Open Source Code (WalMart, AirBnB, NFL)
- ▶ Give back to Community (Nicaraguan School)

*I don't know what you are working on, so I am shooting from the hip!
